Riley Underwood

Full Stack Developer

—

Austin, TX 78731
(512) 949-8243
rileybusinesswood@gmail.com boltenbeeper.github.io/portfolio

To whom it may concern,

Thanks for taking the time to read this letter! My name is Riley Underwood. I'm a software developer who fell in love with coding at 11 years old through Scratch. Since then it's been my goal to do what I love for a living which is why I've invested several years building up skills and knowledge from several areas of development. I've got experience ranging from game design to full stack web development. I manage to stay curious and passionate about all things tech-related. I believe my history of dedicated training to my coding skills, wide range of experience, as well as real insatiable desire to keep learning make me a great asset to any Full Stack development team.

Here are 3 reasons I believe I could be a great match for your team:

Proven Experience: Over the years I've built up a portfolio of personal and professional projects covering several different languages and frameworks, many of which are available on my personal e-portfolio. These show my experience spanning every step of the production pipeline, both alone and as part of a team. Beyond coding, I believe my experience with writing music, digital art, and story crafting only add to my versatility, showing my talent for juggling multiple projects as well as a huge curiosity that keeps me going.

Drive and Eagerness: I recognize that I may not meet every single requested qualification in the ideal candidate. However, I believe I can make up for it in several ways. Firstly, my willingness to learn. If there is a technology my team uses that I am not super familiar with, rest assured I will make it my mission to dive in head first. I will take the time to become adept while being mindful of deadlines and project needs. Secondly, my solid work ethic. I'm not looking for an easy job. In fact, I welcome challenges in my work because it means a chance to improve.

Hard Worker: I am someone who takes a lot of pride in his work. Both in my job and in my personal projects, it's important to me that my work reflects my passion and, ideally, inspires others. I don't like to take shortcuts and I like to stay just outside my comfort zone because it means the experience I am getting is meaningful and that makes it worth it for me. That's why I'm looking for a role where I will be challenged but also have the resources and room I need to grow. To back this up, I've built up a list of references spanning my whole career, ranging from high school teachers to most recent employers. All of whom will happily tell you I'm worth the chance.

If you believe I am worth a longer look then I would love nothing more than to further discuss how I can support your team. I look forward to the possibility of hearing from you soon!

All the best,

Riley Underwood =)